SUBJECT: Transmittal of Report

The first section of our systems approach, dealing with electric shock, is enclosed. As we agreed, our emphasis has been on the medical and physiological aspects of electric current as an incapacitating technique, rather than on hardware, delivery systems, and operational aspects of the techniques.

We would appreciate your comments as to the emphasis, coverage and organization of this material, keeping in mind that full, in-depth coverage of any single "system" would represent a major research effort in itself.
