My dear [redacted]

By this time, I hope you will have received the documents that I had forwarded to you under separate cover. In that connection, I am returning the article by [redacted], H-8/6 which I have had copied. Let me mention at this time that I am still studying the book on toxicology by Lewin which you loaned me and when I have finished reading it and making notes, I will send it to you immediately.

I am taking the liberty of sending you some excerpts from one of the publications of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. As a criminologist, you should find this paper interesting although, of course, you may have received it a long time ago. The problem of the homicide in this particular case, and based on what I have read is apparently quite an interesting one and if you could ever find the time, I would like to have your comments on "Death by Inhibition" as set out in the excerpts. Perhaps you have handled, in your work, similar cases.

If you will recall in our confidential discussion, the question of to what extent individuals could be controlled under hypnosis and the question of death by various hypnotic means has been theoretically debated by myself and my associates on many occasions.

Very truly yours,

[redacted] A
