Conversations with [redacted] on Saturday, 24 March 1951

C

1. The conversations with [redacted] concerning the possible availability of [redacted] took place in [redacted] as planned. [redacted] executed the attached Memorandum of Understanding, classified "Restricted" and numbered I&S 62. He kept the second copy which you delivered to me for that purpose.

2. Conversations covered only part of the defensive aspects of Project BLUEBIRD. [redacted] was convinced that:

a. The project was of such importance that it was to the interest of national defense to have it successfully carried out,

b. That [redacted] was competent to undertake the assignment as coordinator, and

c. That [redacted] would be given the opportunity to decide whether or not he would undertake the CIA assignment. If he so decided the company would not stand in his way.

3. [redacted] felt that [redacted] was not uniquely qualified for the job, and he felt that there must be somebody else who could carry it on as successfully as [redacted]

4. The conversation developed the company's policy, to take to [redacted] level any call to uniformed service [redacted] on the basis that he was an indispensable man in any indispensable industry.

H

5. [redacted] plans to be in Washington on Saturday, [redacted] ch for further conversations with me. I would judge our chanc[redacted] getting his services as not higher than 50-50.

FYI [redacted] A

6. Please accept my thanks for the arrangements you [redacted]e with me to permit me to speak freely with [redacted]
