1. In answer to the reference [redacted] J knows as much about the referenced technique as the undersigned, i.e., that some form of hypnotic training can be given to an observation type agent prior to a mission which enables the agent to retain more acquired information without the benefit of notes as well as to recall, under hypnotism, the details of the mission following its completion.

2. On 14 March 1962 [redacted] J was told that this form of training could not be used in her case since the technician, who would administer it, would not be available.
